

The dogs of war are still chained in Europe.

The old rule is still in vogue. No offices are going in search of men.

The crop of suicides promises to be larger than usual this year. So far there have been more suicides than murders.

The Louisiana democrats are very much at Mr. Cleveland and his method of distributing offices. Mr. Cleveland should be congratulated.

Colonel Viles would like to go to the senate, and therefore doesn't want to be handicapped with having supported ex-confederates for Wisconsin offices.

General Bragg says he has a "mighty poor opinion of the civil service reformers." This would indicate that the little general is weakening on the administration.

If Carter Harrison should succeed in recovering $800,000—the alleged amount of damage done by his character—he will be able to start and maintain a newspaper which will do what no other paper can do, say something good of him.

Judge Doolittle is circulating a petition in this state asking the president to give him a foreign mission. As the Judge holds that every man should stand upon his own record, he might present the County letters to the president with the petition.

Nevada is in a very unfortunate condition. The entire population of the state is little more than that of Rock county, and it is said that the average tax per head on every man, woman, child, Indian, Chinaman, pauper, jail-bird and tramp in Nevada, for county and state purposes, can not be less than $30.

The supreme court of Wisconsin, in the case of the St. Paul Railway Company, which was sued by the Cream City Street Railway Company, of Milwaukee, for damages to a street-car in transit over the line of the defendant, has decided that a street-car is not a "carriage" in the accepted sense of the term, and therefore, is not covered by the conditions of the railroad's bill of lading, which specifies that "carriages must be transported at the owner's risk."

The Boston Herald, a Cleveland paper, said in 1880, when Eben F. Pillsbury and Charles F. Chase were engaged in working up the Garcelon frauds in Maine, that "if the people of Maine do not rise up and rebuke the political enthusiasm whose infamous record caused every son of Maine to blush, we shall lose our faith in natural law." Pillsbury was driven out of the state by popular indignation and settled in Boston. The Herald now says he has a bad record but will perform the duties of the office well. Lilo Schurz, it forgives the president for making the appointment, and says that it was simply the result of bad counsel which is not a serious matter.

Should war be declared between Russia and England, there will be a large number of people in this country who will naturally allow their sympathies to go out for Russia. During the great civil war, when the north was making a deeper struggle to prevent a dissolution of the Union, the Russian government stood firm against the slaveholder's rebellion; and when Duke Alexis was in the United States in 1871, Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes expressed the feelings of the people of the United States in these lines:

Black are our shores with the black of December;
Petroleum and chill is the river's flow;
Throbbing and warm are the hearts that redden her.

Who was our friend when the world was out of Fires of the North, in eternal communion.
Blend your broad flashes with evening's Bright star!
God bless the Empire that loves the Great Union!
Strength to the people! Love life to the Czar!
Although the aristocracy of England
was in sympathy with the slave-power,
the masses of the people there loved liberty
and hated slavery, and during the war
had a kindly feeling for the Union cause.
And since that time the government of England has shown a tender feeling for this country, and the exceedingly kind telegram the Queen sent to Mrs. Garfield directly after the assassination of her husband, brought from the guns at the Kortowa celebration in 1881, a fitting salute in honor of the English
Queen and her government. Then Dr.
Holmes again wrote:

"Thou glorious island of the west!
Through wide the western flood
That parts our distant land from thee,
We claim thy generous blood.
So that the people of this country should be friends to both sides in the threatened hostilities between Russia and England. It has been suggested that this would be the fairest plan and justice would confirm the suggestion.

THE PLEA OF INSANITY.

The supreme court of Pennsylvania has put in a definite form the sound principles of common sense and law in regard to insanity and murder. A man named Taylor was convicted of murder and sentenced to be hanged. An appeal was taken to the supreme court which, after reviewing the case thoroughly, refused to disturb the judgment of the court below. There may not be anything new in the decision, but it is valuable in pointing out the danger of acquitting men of the highest crime known to the law, on the plea of insanity. In a majority of cases this plea is made, and in very many cases the most cold-blooded and sane murders are acquitted.

Medical science may recognize various degrees of departure from a sound mental organization, but the just and necessary protection of society demands a very different rule. No more "moral obliquity of perception" will protect a person from punishment for his deliberate act; it must be shown that his "reason, conscience and judgment were so entirely perverted" as to render his commission an overwhelming necessity. These principles of the law are so plain and so much in harmony with common sense, that it is singular that juries will pay any attention to the most subtle psychological gibberish in attempting to find an excuse for the most deliberate crime. The decision of the supreme court of Pennsylvania shows that a better tendency is marking the administration of justice in that state, and other states should not be slow in following its example.

THE WATERTOWN POST-OFFICE. There is an interesting contest going on at Watertown in regard to the post office in that city. The bitterness and the wrangling among the democratic leaders of the two factions are intense and widespread, and of course the result is anxiously looked for. To show the depth of the interest General Bragg is taking in the appointment of an ex-confederate as postmaster of a Wisconsin city, the Gazette herewith copies a letter he recently wrote to Colonel Viles:

To the Hon. Wm. M. Viles, Postmaster-General, Washington, D. C.—DEAR SIR:—Herewith I have the honor to transmit the petitions of citizens of Watertown, Wis., asking the appointment as postmaster of that place of Charles E. Gardner, vice Mosk, whose term expires March 22, and I cordially and earnestly approve the prayer of the petition and earnestly recommend the appointment of Mr. Gardner for the following reasons: His appointment is desired by the greater part of the patrons of the office. He is worthy and every way competent. He was, it is true, a confederate soldier, but his appointment is asked for and will be approved by a large proportion of the union soldiers at Watertown, where he is known; and, lastly, I claim the nomination to this office as the representative of the majority of the people here, contrary to their real interest, and I shall consider the rejection of Mr. Gardner an endorsement of Mr. Blaine's post-mortem Augusta speech, which I have no desire to see encouraged in the district I have the honor to represent. I have the honor to be, sir, very respectfully, EDWARD S. BRAGG.

Gardner was a young man when the war broke out and being educated in Kentucky and having strong pro-slavery prejudices, he went south early in 1861, enlisted in the confederate army and when the war closed he returned to Watertown. A decent regard for the principles of loyalty to one's country would dictate that no such man as Gardner ought to be appointed to an office in any northern city; and Postmaster General Viles has said, when discussing the question, that by no act of his shall an ex-confederate receive an office in Wisconsin.

Colonel Viles is right, and republicans, and a large number of democrats of the Viles school, hope that the Colonel will maintain his present backbone and prevent the appointment of Gardner. Bragg is mad because the administration won't recognize him and appoint him postmaster general. This bitter fight is interesting for republicans, but they hope with the better class of democrats that Bragg will be beaten in his attempt to reward ex-confederates for fighting against their country.

Organization of the Mahdi's Army.

[Brooklyn Eagle.] An Arab paper contains an interesting description of the organization of the Mahdi's forces, according to which the tactical unit of his army is the "brotherhood," consisting of ten men, who are originally under the orders of their senior in age. Any soldier, however, who especially distinguishes himself may be promoted to the leadership. Ten of these "brotherhoods" form a company, at the head of which is a friar, and ten companies form a regiment, which is commanded by an emir, or lieutenant. Every company has its living flag, which invariably bears the crossed swords that form the military device of the Mahdi; but the color of the flag varies, each regiment having its own, and, in fact, being known by its color. Deeds of bravery are rewarded by a present of gold, and any private may by continued gallantry raise himself to the rank of emir. When the Mahdi commands in person, he is accompanied by an emir, who constitutes his staff, by ten officers who act as aides-de-camp, and by four mounted standard-bearers. These twenty-four immediate companions of the general are alone eligible to sit on courts martial and councils of war. But the Mahdi has several unofficial counselors, and among these doubtless are the two Frenchmen who, according to the Paris papers, have thrown in their lot with him.

THE REMARKABLE SWORDSMANSHIP OF THE MAHDI. The general, Omer Robo, the cousin of the great mogul, was caused in the rebellion, his execution was ordered. The most skillful swordsman of the empire was provided for the beheading, and the great mogul and his court assembled to see it. For a second the keen Tartar blade flashed in the sunlight and then descended upon the bare neck of Robo, who stood upright to receive the stroke. The sharp steel passed through the vertebrae, muscles and organs of the neck, but so swift was the blow and so keen the blade that the head did not fall, but kept its exact position, and not a vital organ was disturbed. In surprise the great mogul exclaimed: "What, Robo, art thou not beheaded?" "My lord, I am," replied Robo, but so long as I keep my balance right my head will not fall off." The great mogul was so pleased with the defiance of the executioner that he ordered a change to be made on and Robo speedily recovered. He afterward became a loyal subject and was made cashier of the empire, because, as the great mogul remarked, "he knows that if he keeps his balance right his head will not come off." It is one of those curious scraps of history that are often overlooked.

THE MAN WHO DARES.

HE TAKES CHARGE OF A PASSENGER TRAIN WITH A CLUB.

Putting Two Men Hors de Combat, and Then Taking Off with All the Money in the Express Safe.

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., May 1.—A daring train-robbery occurred at Harrodsburg, Ind., early Thursday morning. Train No. 3 of the Louisville, New Albany & Chicago railway left Louisville on time Wednesday evening, and had run almost to Harrodsburg, a distance of ninety miles, without incident. The train was made up of the ordinary sleeping, passenger, smoking and baggage cars, and the latter vehicle had two occupants, George K. Davis, the messenger of the American Express company, and Peter Webber, the baggage-man. A little after midnight, when the train had stopped for water, about a mile from Harrodsburg, Davis was sitting in a chair near the door smoking, while Webber was checking up his accounts at the other end of the car. The moment the train started, a large man, whose countenance was a dark, sunken, and with a pair of bushy black brows, burst upon the door. In his hand he brandished a green hickory club, newly cut and with the bark on. He was the length of an ordinary walking stick, and he held it in a peculiar manner. The robber said not a word, but, raising his weapon, made a dash for the express messenger. Davis laid down his club and drew his revolver, but the blood-gut came crashing down upon his head, and, with a fractured skull, the messenger fell backward, his pistol dropping from his hand upon the floor. This weapon the robber seized, and, firing a shot into the side of the passengers' car, he peered the muzzle of the pistol into the face of the frightened baggage-man, and commanded him to open the safe of the express company that lay in the corner of the car. Webber, dazed, saying that he had no keys, but he was ordered to get them from Davis' pocket, and at the pistol's muzzle the baggage-man leaped over the bloody and wounded body of his companion and snatched him for the keys. These found, he opened the safe, and when the robber shot him, he fell back with a wound on the left side of the head. The bullet, however, glanced off without penetrating the skull, and the desperado proceeded to rifle the safe, taking all the money there was in it. He pulled the bolt-door which connected with the engine, and when the train stopped he got off and disappeared in the woods. The tragedy occurred but a few moments, and the first two passengers knew of it when the train suddenly stopped and the wounded Webber came stumbling into the first passenger car, exclaiming that Davis had been murdered and the safe robbed. The train ran on a few miles to this place, when the wounded Davis was taken to a hotel. It then went on to Chicago.

How much money was in the safe is not yet certainly known, although the best computations that the express company officials can make place it at about $5,000. There were rumors to the effect that the sum was much larger, some persons placing the amount at $8,000, but this is discredited by the company officials, who say that it would be an extraordinary amount to be carried on that train. The sum will not be exactly known until the reports of the various local agents are made at Cleveland. The reason, however, why it is thought that over $5,000 was in the safe is that no shipments of money are carried on this run except from Louisville and local points along the route. The American company makes all of its money shipments from southern points via Cairo, and there is little trade between Chicago and Louisville which calls for large remittances from the latter city north. The company carries much more money on its southern run than it does on its northern, and unless there was some extraordinary shipment the officials feel safe in placing the maximum amount at the figure above mentioned. Had there been such a shipment they feel sure they would have been notified of it. Whatever the sum was, the robber got all of it, as only $1.50 was found in the safe.

After an examination of the wounds of the express messenger and baggage-man by the doctors, they were both pronounced fatal. Peter Webber is married and lives in New Albany, to which place he was taken on the morning express. George Davis is a single man and lived in Louisville. Before the robbery a tall, slender man, carrying a heavy stick, was seen in the smoking-car, but after the event he was missing. He no doubt was the robber, although it is thought there was but one man more than one. After daylight the news of the robbery spread rapidly, and the people in the vicinity of Harrodsburg and Smithville turned out on horse to scour the country. Telegrams were sent in every direction and officers acted promptly on the alarm. Enough was ascertained to make sure that the robber went across the fields to the westward, and after following his trail about two miles all traces of him were lost. The express company and railroad officials are on the alert, and will continue so until the robber is arrested. Davis' brother arrived from Louisville Thursday noon, and found the wounded man very low and beyond recovery. His wounds had been dressed and all possible attention given him.

A man who has served a term in the penitentiary was seen in the neighborhood of the place where the train stopped early in the morning, and as he answered the description of the robber the officers are after him.

DEAD SHORT ARRANGED. New York, May 1.—Richard Short, the assailant of Capt. Peelan, of Kansas City, was arraigned for trial at noon Thursday. The court-room was crowded and it was necessary to keep a strong force of police to keep back the hundreds of people who were struggling for admission. Neither Ross nor "Rocky Mountain" O'Brien was present and Peelan was also absent. Up to 4 o'clock but one juror had been selected and the case was adjourned.

Will Be Tried for Incendiarism. CINCINNATI, May 1.—Mrs. Eleanor Hawley, charged by two detectives with having fired the Palace hotel, appeared in the police court here Thursday morning. Her attorney asked a continuance of the case and it was set for hearing next Tuesday. Bond was fixed at $2,500, which was furnished and the lady released. She was very ill and was hardly able to stagger from the court-room.

For Uncle Sam's Buildings. WASHINGTON, May 1.—The contract for furnishing cast-iron door and window frames for the new wings of the state, war and navy department building has been awarded to W. H. Jackson & Co., of New York city, for $70,885.

A Vessel Probably Lost. LONDON, May 1.—The steamship Humbler, which left New York Feb. 18, with British mails, has not been heard from and is probably lost.
